

Sam Behjati is a Group Leader / Wellcome Senior Research Fellow at the Wellcome Sanger Institute and Honorary Consultant Paediatric Oncologist at Cambridge University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust. His research focuses on unravelling the origins of childhood cancer using genomic techniques. In his clinical role, he leads efforts to integrate whole genome sequencing into clinical practice. Originally from Germany, He read medicine at Oxford and completed post-graduate clinical and research training in London and Cambridge.